

PETER PRYNN, M.A. – Chief Executive

Peter Prynn joined ISL in 2001 after 15 years as a Director of ERM. Trained as an economist, he has had 30 years experience as a consultant in the international arena specialising in environmental economics and the financing of projects. He has worked throughout the world, but with a special emphasis on South Asia, Africa and Central and Eastern Europe. He has led projects concerned with environmental management, solid waste master planning, institutional strengthening and project financing.

Recent assignments include

- advising the Swaziland Environmental Authority on their transformation from a government department into a parastatal organisation with independent powers and responsibilities
- giving a number of high level courses in environmental economics for EU personnel and local officials involved in project preparation in the field
- assisting in developing a business plan for a recently privatized organisation involved in developing country agriculture
- leading a team developing a scheme to privatise a solid waste management operation in a major city in China
- leading a team developing a clinical waste master plan for the Lebanon.

He has also played a leading role in the development of the consulting profession in the UK and was formerly Chairman of the International Consulting Economists Association and Director of the British Consultants Bureau.
